Boyz and girlz in the hoodies - Triumph goes 'undercover' for its winter 2015 collection

Looking for the latest winter style that combines urban cool with a hint of British retro? Triumph Motorcycles has produced a duo of 'his and hers' hoodies that will keep you warm this winter, while helping you look chilled!

Both made to commemorate the year 1902, when the first Triumph bike was manufactured in the Midlands, the new Sherpa clothing range is made from a heavyweight cotton/polyester mix and has a soft berba lining for a luxurious and durable finish.

The washed black ladies' Zip Hood comes in 6 sizes (XS - 3L) and comprises subtle Triumph branding on the breast pocket and pocket lining. With an eye catching faux fur lined hood, the Sherpa is the ideal addition to anyone's active/outdoor wardrobe. Retailing at £80, the 1902 hoodie is available exclusively via Triumph's UK dealer network.

The gents' 1902 Sherpa fleece comes in charcoal grey, sizes S - XXXL. With understated branding on the breast pocket and sleeve, this heavyweight garment is a must-have item for any Triumph fan looking for a durable, yet iconic casual top.

Priced at just £81, the Sherpa Fleece looks equally cool out and about, or down the pub with friends.
